

PRINCIPALES TIPOS DE CORTEZAS DE ÁRBOLES SEGÚN LA TEXTURA
Arboles ornamentales / Tree bark / Types of barks

Lisa  A close-up photograph of a tree trunk with a very smooth, light-colored bark, showing some faint horizontal lines.	Exfoliada  A photograph showing a person's hands peeling away a layer of bark from a tree trunk, revealing a smoother surface underneath.	Escamosa  A close-up photograph of tree bark with a scaly, overlapping texture, characteristic of conifers.	Fisurada  A close-up photograph of tree bark with a deeply furrowed and cracked texture.
Surcada vertical  A close-up photograph of tree bark with distinct vertical furrows or grooves.	Surcada horizontal  A close-up photograph of tree bark with distinct horizontal furrows or grooves.	Agrietada  A close-up photograph of tree bark with a cracked, irregular texture.	Espinosa  A close-up photograph of a tree trunk covered in sharp, dark thorns or spines.